

Job Description

Title: Online Course/Seminar Developer: Accounting

Ashton College is currently seeking an experienced Online Course/Seminar Developer (Accounting Sector).

The successful candidate will have at least a relevant Bachelor's or Master's degree with at least three years of experience developing online CPD courses for licensed accounting professionals. Familiarity with the accounting profession is essential.

This position will appeal to an accounting professional (active or retired) who has a passionate interest in developing training courses for a wide variety of licensed accounting professionals across Canada. Working directly with regulatory bodies, the successful candidate will formulate course/seminar learning objectives, identify relevant course/seminar content and materials, and structure assessment policies and practices in keeping with the CPD requirements of the relevant regulatory body. Excellent communication and writing skills are required. Previous experience working with a recognized learning management system will be a distinct asset.

This is a one-year renewable contract which allows for working from home and flexible hours. Remuneration is negotiable depending on experience.
